OPENS FRIDAY 5/24

Before Midnight

Time to fall in love again with Jesse and Celine. In 1995's Before Sunrise, the American writer (Ethan Hawke) met his French muse (Julie Delpy) on a train to Vienna. Nine years later in Before Sunset, they reunited in Paris. This time, they spend an evening strolling picturesque Greece. The film might not be as achingly romantic as its predecessors, but it is every bit as soulful and stirring. Is their passion gone? Will they still love each other in their golden years? The dialogue is so heartfelt and natural, you have to lean forward in your seat to absorb it all.

OPENS FRIDAY 5/24

Fast & Furious 6

The franchise still has plenty of power under its hood. This high-energy installment finds Dom (Vin Diesel) & Co. hunting a terrorist. Complicating matters: Dom's former love Letty (Michelle Rodriguez) — who was presumed dead! — is part of the villain's crew. As usual, the chase scenes kick the film into overdrive, culminating in the spectacle of cars dangling from a burning cargo plane.

Moving Away for My Man!

IT'S THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY! EVE, 34 — who just released Lip Lock, her first CD since 2002 — raps with Us.

Q: Where've you been for 11 years? Far from chillin'! I was performing nonstop and acting in Hollywood.

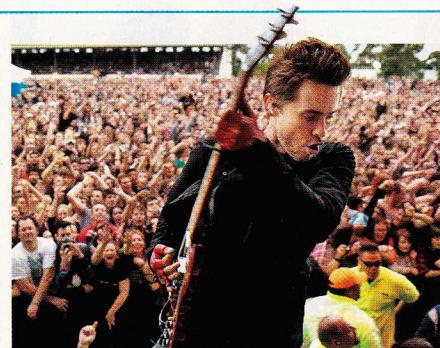

Q: Then you relocated to London? Yep, last year. I went there to be with my British boyfriend of three years [entrepreneur Maximillion Cooper, 40]. It was either move or break up.

Q: You love tattoos. Any new ones? Not in five years. I have 14, but I don't know if my body has any more space!

"It's time for him to step up,"
Eve jokes of getting engaged.

Jared Leto refuses to grow up. The actor turned rock star, 41, who doesn't look a day older than My So-Called Life's Jordan Catalano, injects his band's virile fourth effort with teenage rage and melodrama. He vows to "fight to the death" for love on the mutinous "Conquistador," then wails "Time is running out!" atop vigorous drums and guitars in the apocalyptic "Do or Die." Long live Leto! (Virgin)
