JENNIFER HUDSON

The Fifth SATC Gal

FROM DREAMGIRLS TO A DREAM role! Oscar winner Jennifer Hudson, 26, joins the four SATC gals as Carrie's assistant in the flick. She tells Us about the shoot.

Q: Did you and SJP talk fashion? Purses! She complimented me on my bag, but she thought it was my character's. I was like, "No, this is Jennifer's bag." I'm a bag girl. At the moment I have about 14.

Q: Did she ask you to sing a lot? Our biggest connection was music. One day she had me singing "And I Am Telling You" [from Dreamgirls]. And I'd play music from my album [due this fall]. I would take my iPod to her dressing room and leave it in there so she could listen.

Q: Since you had the full script, did friends beg to know the plot?

My sister's a big fan, but I didn't tell her a thing. I was like, "You'll wait."

Q: Your Oscar's in your Chicago apartment. Can people touch it? It's on its own mantel on a lighted stand, and I allow a few people to touch it. But some people just pick it right up without asking. I'm like, "Why would you do that?" I mean, really!

The Strangers

After attending a friend's wedding, overwrought couple Kristen (Liv Tyler) and James (Scott Speedman) head to separate bedrooms at his parents' empty country house after she turns down his marriage proposal — and then the night only worsens. At 4 A.M., after a loud knock on the door, three strangers launch a savage invasion that puts the pair's relationship woes in raw, gory perspective. Tyler and Speedman make for a believable, attractive couple, and the scares are straightforward and unironic. The strong performances and tight narrative — combined with the effective use of a remote South Carolina location — add up to an unnerving thriller that may have you reconsidering the summer weekend in the country!

Ashanti The Declaration

Was it too much too soon? Ashanti once had three Top 10 singles at the same time, and her 2002 album broke the first-week sales record for a female singer's debut. But her career hasn't lived up to its initial promise. While her fourth CD of self-penned R&B tracks contains a few hip beats (such as the piano-driven first single, "The Way That I Love You"), the sound feels out of date — and her collaborations with

Robin Thicke and beau Nelly don't compare to her early teamings with Ja Rule and J. Lo. The new disc lacks her old-school heat. (Universal/Motown)

Ashanti (on May 8) wrote the emotional track "Mother" about her momager, Tina Douglas.
